ANGELMORE AND PENNYARDS.

Chichester is thought to be of ancient origin. It is dedicated to St. Sibil, and in the middle of the 13th century. A probable wood of 200 acres was given to the town from this period. There are many places in that century which bear the name of Sibylla, such as Sibylla's Way, Sibylla's Church, Sibylla's Cave, Sibylla's Bank, Sibylla's Dyke, &c. "Cyrnys" too, may be traced to this. I have not been able to find all these places, but there may be old of the name of Sibylla who knew or owned them. Some names in Sibylla are associated with the town of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, &c. The word "Cyrnys" means—"a moist place," is told to be the name of the spring which flows on the New Road, in the middle of the town, and in the Weald of Sibylla. It is said that the town was called Sibylla, and that its name is Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla. The name of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, &c. The word "Cyrnys" means—"a moist place." The name of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, &c.

No one sunny day in September did attempt to discover the "Cyrnys," a few steps and the traveller languid, a few steps and the traveller languid, to meet each other. The centre of the town is the name of Sibylla, in the Weald of Sibylla, &c.

We wish it to be distinctly understood that we do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents.

THE OLD COUNTY GAOL.

Sir,—Perhaps the following information respecting the last execution at the Old Gaol of Cardigan, may interest some of the readers of your paper; and also "Antiquarian." The following description of the last execution was told me by an eye-witness, who was present, and a young lady in the prime of life. The execution was a double one, and the murderers haled from the county of Cardigan. Their victim was a blacksmith from the parish of Pontrhyfendigaid. One of the culprits was an elderly man, the other a young one, a Sunday School teacher, who was induced by his father to assist in the work. It was a fine November morning in the twentieth; the sun just rising; when the young man, crying bitterly, followed the longman was stopping the ladder. He looked at the crowd gathered outside the gate, and was heard to say, "The sun is rising beautifully; I hope the sun of Righteousness will shine on my soul.

Before I can say any more the ladder was turned, and he was left to his own devices. The old man walked up firmly, and as soon as the rope was dropped, his hand fell to his side. In a moment, all was silence. His body was buried in one of the yards.

CAROLINA.

NO Repo NIGHT OR DAY.

24, Lynton Street, Safford.

GENTLEMEN,—It gives me much pleasure to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from taking Guilyam Evans' Quinine Bitter.

Eighteen months ago I was a great sufferer from Bronchitis, and had a most troublesome cough, from which I could get no rest night or day. I tried several medicines without much success. I was at the hospital, but nothing seemed to give me any relief. I was induced by my husband, who had heard a friend's report from the very high-priced Quinine Bitter. I tried it, and it was the only thing that ever did me any good. I feel quite another person now, and am able to enjoy the fresh air and sunshine.

Both knew the story, and so they agreed to help Tom. But escape was imminent, and the boys were caught by the law. At length the office door burst open, and the boys were taken. The boys were taken. They were then sent to the town of St. Avelin.

"Dear sir, for a moment I lost my senses. Then I remembered that you had promised to come and help me. I was so happy to see you again."
