Too short a fuse

PTRANSCIENCE SEEMS to be the name of the game Britain's teachers and their unions are playing. On the one hand, the teaching profession is on strike, with thousands of teachers missing classes in sympathy. The teachers are being accused of having a 'short fuse', and the government is saying that teachers are striking for 'inappropriate' reasons.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Killed goose that laid golden egg

SIR—The present Minister of Agriculture says that he would like to see the decline in the price of goose eggs, which he says is due to overproduction, but this is not the case. The price of goose eggs has been rising steadily for the past few years, and there is no sign of a decrease in demand. The problem is that there are too many goose farms, and the price of goose eggs is being driven down by the overproduction of goose eggs.

What have they done to our pound?

SIR—The recent fall in the value of the pound has made it difficult for us to afford our weekly shopping. We used to be able to buy a week's worth of groceries for £10, but now we have to spend £12.

The secret of the old manor house at the edge of the village was a mystery to me until I read the book.

Welsh connection in biggest drug swoop of all time

UNDERCOVER Police squads who planned and carried out the biggest ever police operation to tackle the drug trade in Britain have smashed the LSD ring known as 'The Welsh Connection'.

As a senior detective put it—

"The police have been tracking this operation for months. We have been able to gather evidence from informants and undercover operations. The ring is thought to be involved in the supply of LSD and other drugs to other parts of the country."

For months they watched the ring closely.

"The police have been keeping a close eye on the ring for months. We have been able to gather evidence from informants and undercover operations. The ring is thought to be involved in the supply of LSD and other drugs to other parts of the country."

Michael Green, the former police chief, has said that the ring was a major operation.

"The police have been keeping a close eye on the ring for months. We have been able to gather evidence from informants and undercover operations. The ring is thought to be involved in the supply of LSD and other drugs to other parts of the country."

The operation was a huge success.
